

Building a better print file: page 8

IMAGES

Embedded images are part of the design file and transfer as a whole. If your images are embedded no extra step is needed when sending your finished print ready files to your printer.

Linked images are just that, linked. The actual image is not stored inside your design file, but rather separately. This reduces file size and makes updating images much easier. This method is preferred when using page layout software. If your images are linked you must send the images to the printer along with the finished design file. (In-Design has a package feature that simplifies this process.)

Place finished design file, images and fonts
inside file folder.
Zip and send to printer

Next Month-
File Type